Always selected theme for the essay. It should be the only one, cannot contain a lot of thoughts at the same time.

Freedom in writing is one of the features.

There is no clear framework in writing an essay. It does not obey the laws of logic, but acts against. This is exactly the case when you need to do the opposite.

Ease when writing.

The author must state the thoughts so that the reader does, without any stress, I understand what he wanted to say. No need to complicate everything, there is an approval that the essay can write only the author, which is well versed in the subject, he sees it from the inside.

Paradoxical written text.

This genre implies the surprise of the reader when mutually exclusive statements and approval (see metonymia).

Meaning in writing.

Despite the fact that the essay was written in a free style, it must have the meaning of the author's personal positions.

It is impossible when writing to apply spoken slang, reduce words, as well as use frivolity. The nature of the written creation should be serious.

Before you start writing an essay, you should decide on the topic. You should start with the basic thought, to immediately attract the attention of the reader. How to start writing an essay?

What to pay attention to when writing?

It is necessary to decide on the topic and purpose of the essay, its individual sections.

To attract the attention of the listener or reader, you need to enter a fact or phrase to the beginning of the text.

At the beginning of the text there should be a description of the issue on the topic.

The text must have a structure, that is, divided into paragraphs, sections. There should be a logical connection between them, the integrity of work will be achieved.

Essay text should be written emotionally. This can be achieved by applying short sentences or phrases with different intonations.

How to write an essay?

Before writing, you can read the essay (there are examples on the Internet), as well as in this article and just below.

There is a rule for the essay, how to write it, the text must have a suitable header.

The structure can be made in an arbitrary form. The volume of text is small, it is not necessary in the conclusions to repeat the main idea set out when writing.

No need to insert statements, like: "I can tell about it or about that" or other similar things, this formulation is characteristic of writing abstracts. Try to reveal the essence of your question. Select the topic

Before starting writing, it is necessary to decide on the topic, and this may take a lot of time, especially in a situation when nothing comes to mind.

There are exceptions when the teacher himself determines the topic when there is a direction in the task when you can take a topic to choose from from the proposed list or write about what you will be pleased with (free topic). Clear direction in the task
